This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1898 edition. Excerpt: ...was published for nine years in behalf of religious liberty, and did great service. I have taken great pains not to present anything of these matters, so degrading for the Swedish Government, without absolute proof of their correctness. All of them were publicly stated in a lecture at Gothenburg in 1872, which was printed by thousands, and no one charged me with any mistake or exaggeration. For additional and corroborative proof of the views presented in connection with this subject may be quoted a few lines from Mackenzie's Life of John Calvin. He says: "It should seem that there is connected with the act of persecution a certain undefinable pleasure, which is at once the luxury and reproach of a bigoted and malignant mind. The real ground of persecution, whatever specious forms it may assume, is the native depravity of human nature; in decidedly wicked characters, it selects for its object vital Christianity; but where it unhappily obtains amongst religious persons, it must certainly be ascribed to ill-regulated zeal, and a mistaken apprehension of the genius of Christianity." PLEASURE AND PROFITS OF PERSECUTIONS are the real motives at the bottom of all State persecutions. Think of the many millions of confiscated property that has thus come into the possession of unprincipled rulers, and also of the rewards offered to accusers and prosecutors. Add to that the "undefinable pleasure," and how some rulers have been "delighted to inflict" "terrible penalties." One instance of a thousand may suffice to show how the rapacity of rulers has occasioned the most direful persecutions. In the times of Edward I. (one of the great number of England's unprincipled kings), the Jews had succeeded in amassing...
