Comments From Other Readers

“Living up North has always meant that once the first frost hits, the garden gets shut down. Frozen ground and planting never seems to mix well. I never knew that I could keep growing without a green house. The winter box was easy to put together and maintain and during the summer months I can repurpose it for flowers or herbs. I love that I can get my family fresh vegetables all year round now!” - Brianna (New York, US)

“Our ground here gets too cold for successful planting. I loved the greenhouse information! I never really thought about setting my own up. I just thought it would be too much work. The book really made it simple though. We’re getting cold weather now but the greenhouse is staying nice and toasty. I can’t wait to get planting this winter!” - Norman (Winnipeg, Canada)
