Roy Dan Baron

Looking Glass Shattered: Cubicle Commando to Constitutional Conservative Leader Roy Dan Baron Roy ('Backpack') Baron earned his nickname, 'Backpack', when he hit the pause on his Executive career consulting Fortune 100 firms and U.S. Government Agencies in cutting edge Computer Science, Information Technology, encryption, and Cyber-Security. He escaped the comfortable cozy corporate cubicle cocoon and crisscrossed America making for adventure, on a life-enriching sabbatical. Backpack yearned for adventure and sold his worldly goods, put minimal possessions in a backpack and hit the road to experience America. From a plush office to the Backroads of America. Backpack had the guts to hang-up a lucrative secure corporate career and experience life' Said Yoda, Editor of the Magnified View Magazine. ' He took risks that few dare to do and was rewarded with enriching experiences. He met with the rich and famous and the poor and homeless. While on a group wilderness 110 degree Grand Canyon Canyon expedition Backpack was bitten by a Black Widow spider resulting in losing a hunk of his left leg calf in an emergency room in Flagstaff Arizona. He nearly fell off a raggedy ladder at his covert mission in the Indian reservation Hava Supai in the Grand Canyon. Hear more about Backpack's argosy in America on his popular radio program, Voices of Global Freedom radio. Roy is an award-winning journalist, distinguished author of his memoirs called "Looking Glass Shattered: Cubicle Commando to Constitutional Conservative Leader", host and producer of the popular "Voices of Global Freedom Radio" show and a rough and tumble adventurer. "Backpack packs a lot into life and writes exclusive, riveting, feature articles for our magazine as our News Editor." Said Janorama, Founding Editor In Chief of the million plus visitors Magnified View Magazine. Backpack traveled by train, plane, bus, bike, hitchhiking, and on foot. He interviewed well to do, the blue collar and befriended the downtrodden homeless. He lived in four star hotels, ghettos, hotels, campsites, hostels, homeless shelters, and with families. Adventure means risk and uncertain outcomes. Backpack's journal "Looking Glass Shattered" reveals some close calls he encountered on his journey, including armed robbers, assaults, hypothermia, and toxic water on wilderness trails. Backpack's street savvy skills helped him dodge very dangerous and conniving bad guys. Highlights of Backpack's journey was hiking over one-hundred miles through the Appalachian Trail from Georgia to Maine. He was drawn to the world's longest marked-path trail to escape the hectic city life, meet other kindred woodsmen, and reconnect with nature. He gave mountains of clothing to distressed victims of hurricane Ilene in Stowe Vermont, and gathered undercover intelligence on the hapless Occupy Movement in Manhattan New York City, Eugene Oregon, Tent City in Phoenix Arizona, and on a covert investigative journalist mission across the Texas Rio Grande to Boquillos Mexico. Radio interviewing fascinating people in unique places from a popup tent trailer. He has stand up interviews of park rangers in Yellowstone National Park, financial executives on Wall Street, Cajuns in Louisiana swamps, housewives in rural Nebraska, Fortune 100 corporate Barons in a Skyscraper Chicago, a prospector in the superstition mountains of Arizona, drugged out New Age hippies in San Francisco, and Black Panthers in Oakland California. As a people magnet, Backpack met some fond life-long friends on his journey. "Roy makes a major contribution to the Magnified View's Magazine 'analysis of News you can use' and provides 'actionable tactics, methods, and strategies to survive and thrive in these dangerous troubled times.'" observed Janorama, Magnified View's Editor-In-Chief. "Roy Magnified View Magazine News-Editor recounts his life-enriching adventure crafting feature articles for the million plus visitor Magnified View Internet magazine.
