This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1826 Excerpt: ...to nominate persons to Compose the acting committee. When the list was reported, Col. Loring, of Charlestown, made a motion to add two to the committee from Charlestown, which was adopted. On the whole, the meeting on Thursday evening, to take into consideration the personal circumstances of Mr Jefferson, with a view of adopting some mode of contributing to his immediate relief, was interesting and spirited.--Patriotism, which has so conspicuously radiated from that memorable place, where the illustrious orators of revolutionary scenes defended their own and their country's rights, governed every individual; and the unanimity, good feeling and philanthropy which influenced the audience, reflects the highest credit on the assembly. The speech of Col. Knapp was a lofty flight: his eloquence reached the heart.

ENTAILMENTS. The proposition which recently emanated from the legislature of Louisiana, of settling a pension upon Mr. Jefferson, which should descend to his posterity forever, mentioned in our last paper, is at war with common sense, the principles of our government and the patriotism of the American people. A warm degree of gratitude for the services which the ex-president has rendered the nation, accompanied with a romantic enthusiasm, probably gave rise to the resolution. If our states, as independent governments, or the general government, a guardian of the whole, would study the happiness of the union, let them be careful how they pension individuals, however great their claims. Above all, we hope that the odious custom of entailing money upon those who were fortunate in being the offsprings of great men, will never be sanctioned in any form, in a country which is professedly the land of equal rights, where the constitution expressly declares--all ...
